

Lecturer, Professional Writing and Rhetoric

Deadline: November 1, 2023

The Professional Writing and Rhetoric Program in the Department of English at Baylor University seeks a full-time lecturer to teach undergraduate writing and rhetoric courses in the Professional Writing and Rhetoric major. We welcome applications from candidates with any specialization in Rhetoric and Composition/Writing Studies, including but not limited to writing program administration, digital rhetorics and multimodal writing, environmental rhetoric and science writing, indigenous rhetorics, cultural rhetorics, grant and nonprofit writing, writing across the curriculum, public rhetorics and community writing, rhetorics of health and medicine, writing assessment, technical communication, multilingual writing, editing and publishing, Latinx rhetorics, or visual rhetorics.

Essential Functions

Teaching will include rhetoric and writing courses in the Professional Writing and Rhetoric major with the possibility of teaching courses in the First-Year Writing Program. Candidates should demonstrate teaching excellence, expertise in writing pedagogy, and a willingness to serve the department, university, and profession. Experience teaching advanced writing and rhetoric courses is desired. Because Baylor is a Christian university, candidates should also demonstrate a faith commitment and an active spiritual life. The position offers generous benefits in a rapidly growing town with beautiful parks and a thriving business district.

Qualifications

- PhD in rhetoric and composition/writing studies or related discipline in hand by August 1, 2024.
- Evidence of successful college-level teaching experience in rhetoric and composition/writing studies.
- Experience teaching advanced writing and rhetoric courses is desired but not required.
- A record of peer-reviewed publications is desired but not required.

Application Procedure

Please submit by November 1, 2023, a letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts (including the official transcript for the Ph.D. or highest degree earned), a writing sample, three letters of recommendation, and a statement about faith commitment. The faith commitment statement is a brief description of your past or current involvement in a faith community and your desire to participate in a faith community while serving as a faculty member at Baylor. Applications will be submitted through Interfolio (<http://apply.interfolio.com/130847>).

About the English Department and the Professional Writing and Rhetoric Program

The English Department at Baylor University is organized into three programs: Professional Writing and Rhetoric, Literature and Creative Writing, and Linguistics. Each program offers an undergraduate major, including Professional Writing and Rhetoric, English Literature, and Linguistics, as well as a minor in creative writing. The department also offers an MA and PhD in English Literature. The PWR Program currently has over 75 students and five full-time faculty. Faculty include Kara Poe Alexander, Michael-John DePalma, Coretta Pittman, Lisa Shaver, and Lauren Short. The PWR faculty is a collaborative and supportive community, and we would love for you to join our team.
