This call looks very interesting!

OH!!
What is it about?

Well the CFP is about a new edited collection. Each chapter will present narratives of personal journeys to become multilingual writing teachers and conclude with writing advice they want to share with one of the following groups: first-year writing students, graduate students, dissertation writers, or researchers who write for publications

It said here, "The strength of this edited collection is the focus on affects or emotional aspects of the learning journeys. Additionally, each chapter is encouraged to write or compose by incorporating arts-based or multi-modal practices in the chapter."

It also said that you can write your chapter in different formats such as fiction, play, poetry, graphic novel, or other forms. If you plan to include art works or drawings, they should be your original art pieces

The length of each chapter is approximately 4,000 - 6,000 words including references.
