

From Idea to Publication:

A Practical Workshop for Scholarly Writing and Publishing

November 14th, 2025

10:00am-12:00pm ET

SCAN THE QR CODE TO REGISTER

Join Dr. Laura Gonzales and Dr. Robert Randolph for a dynamic, hands-on workshop designed to help faculty and emerging scholars at HBCUs, HSIs, and community colleges turn great ideas into published work.

Laura Gonzales, PhD, is editor-in-chief of Reflections: A Journal of Community Engaged Writing and Rhetoric and an Associate Professor at the University of Florida. Her research, teaching, and community work engage the intersections of language diversity, technology design, and community engagement.

Robert Randolph, Jr., PhD (he/him), is a vernacular scholar from Eastern North Carolina. He serves as the Director of the Writing Studio at Palo Alto University. And he has held appointments at North Carolina A&T State University, American University, and Shaw University. His research and teaching interests include writing center studies, socio-cultural foundations of education, and Black feminist and queer rhetorics and pedagogies.